A Strong Tariff Letter.

Elsewhere in this morning's INTELLIGENCER is published an interesting letter from Col. H. C. Parsons, of Virginia, on the tariff and its effect in the South. The letter appeared in the New York World, which paper, although Democratic to the backbone, is devoting considerable of its space to a discussion of both sides of the tariff question by distinguished representatives of the two opposing ideas. We particularly commend Colonel Parsons' article to our readers, as a calm, conservative discussion of the practical side of the question from the standpoint of a southern man who has been a student of the industrial condition of his section. He explains a condition and not a theory, and does it in words so plain and convincing that they are unanswerable.

The conditions in West Virginia are almost identical with those in Virginia, and Colonel Parsons' clear showing that Virginia's hope lies in the Republican protective policy which fosters the development of her natural resources and builds up industries just as applicable to West Virginia. He tells some plain facts about certain features of the industrial development now going on, and we commend them to the thoughtful consideration of our Democratic friends who are opposed to protection. Two kinds of development, says Col. Parsons, are going on in Virginia—one the Pennsylvania (or protective) system; the other the Southern system. The Southern system has been re-enforced by English capital, and the towns that have thus been started and the works planted have failed. On the other hand, the vast development which is mostly Pennsylvanian has been uniformly successful. Here is something for West Virginians to ponder over.

But why is this? it may be asked. Is not the same tariff over all? There are two reasons but both based on the same thing. Colonel Parsons says, first, the difference between success and failure seems to lie in the fact that in one case trained managers are procured, and in the other they are not. Second, these industries depend on the kind of nursing they get. Manufacturers require a friendly atmosphere in which to grow. Skilled labor and manufacturing capitalists will not go into sections where sympathy does not exist, and when they go they do not thrive well where they are constantly made the targets of abuse and made the victims of sectional or partisan prejudice.

West Virginia is experiencing a wonderful industrial growth, and it is largely due to the fact that in the past few years her atmosphere has been friendly to all that contributes to substantial development. Another year will see her take a place in the list of Protectionists. Her people fully realize that it is indeed a condition and not a theory which confronts them.

The Anti-Clevelandites.

The anti-Cleveland Democrats of the country in general and of New York in particular have begun in earnest their campaign against the ex-President's nomination next year. The INTELLIGENCER is in receipt of a pamphlet entitled "Anti-Cleveland," which is filled with some vigorous English, depicting Mr. Cleveland as unworthy of the trust of the Democratic party. It bears the ear-marks of disappointed office seekers, but is none the less significant, if it is truthful, of what may be expected from the disappointed contingent in the event of his nomination.

The pamphlet describes an anti-Cleveland secret Democratic organization with over 2,000,000 members and what its particular mission is, in the following language:

It was decided (during Cleveland's administration) to send a delegation to Washington to call the President's attention to the adverse feeling which some of his acts and unanswerable appointments had produced, and to calmly talk over the situation in a gentlemanly and business-like manner, and to ask if he did not himself think, after more mature reflection, that the substance was fairly entitled, after these long years of patient waiting, to a radical change in the administration of Government affairs, and that its own agents, instead of those of the enemy, should be selected to carry its well-defined policy into effect.

Five gentlemen of the very highest standing, and all of unimpeachable character, and each one equipped with more than double the amount of brains that Cleveland himself was ever accused of possessing, comprised that committee. But instead of meeting with such a reception as they were so much entitled to, they were rudely rebuffed, and were treated with disgusting boorishness and wanton contempt. The answer, in substance, was that the President would not attend to their business, but that they must go to their own business, and run the government. Well, the report was made to the leading members of the original meeting. The situation did not need explaining. It was already too apparent. We found that the great party had been betrayed into the hands of a concealed and contemptible foe. We immediately organized for action, and promptly adopted the policy of our great leader, Samuel J. Tilden. An "Anti-Cleveland" was inaugurated, which has disclosed the existence of over two millions of anti-Cleveland Democrats, every one of whom is pledged, irrevocably, to vote against him, no matter whom the opposing candidate may be. We meet frequently and secretly, have our passwords and grips, and visiting delegations whose business it is to report progress and see that all branches of our order work in harmony.

and we are prepared to present an invulnerable phalanx against the election of Grover Cleveland to any public office.

After a lengthy argument to show that Cleveland was not only unfaithful to the Democracy, but that he is a tool of the "gold bugs" on Wall street, the pamphlet concludes:

In case the convention of '92 should so far forget itself as to repeat the mistake of '88 at St. Louis, we will immediately open anti-Cleveland quarters in every city of the Union, and will make such an exhibition of strength as will completely stagger his most visionary votaries, and they will find, when too late, that there is more than double the opposition to him now than was developed at the last election.

There is, as we believe, no other point on which the Democracy is likely to split or divide. Then why, with all the available timber for able presidential candidates at hand, should any section of our party insist on having this disastrous overthrow, pompous and pious pretender.

Now, Mr. Cleveland and his friends know what they must look out for.

With Brother Dana on one side and this powerful organization on the other they will have a hard row to hoe next year. The public awaits with breathless interest the opening of hostilities.

The Bennington Monument.

At Bennington, Vermont, to-day, the monument erected to commemorate the battle at that place in 1777, will be dedicated. It will be a great day for Vermont, for though one of the smallest States in the Union, the monument she will consecrate is the largest battle memorial in the world, and in height is second only to the Washington monument at the national Capitol. It is described as follows by a contemporary: The structure is 300 feet high and is distinguished by the adoption of the vertical curve, which runs from base to apex, but which in the first 200 feet amounts to less than three inches. At that height there is a room, about twenty feet square, from which a magnificent view can be had of the town and surrounding country. The curve becomes more pronounced above this point until the apex is reached, and the effect is most pleasing. The monument is thus described: "A mighty shaft of gray, blue dolomite, rising straight upward toward the northern sky 300 feet upon bearing on its apex a rod with a gilt star; the ent stone has the rough rock face, which, with the curious chromatic quality of this dolomite, produces changing effects, varying from black under the thunder cloud to a warm, soft gray in the summer sun, while every little face and angle gives its own tone to the picture, making a gracious play of light and shadow."

The pile adds another to the list of the wonders of the world and is the more interesting, because it commemorates one of the most important events connected with the birth of the greatest of the world's republics.

Some discreet Democratic journals look with disfavor upon Roger Q. Mills' candidacy for the Speakership. In discussing it they warn the Democracy that the situation is a crisis for the party, and much depends upon the choice of a Speaker of the House of Representatives. The choice of Mills, they say, would be one of sentiment and not discretion.

To-day the Pennsylvania Republicans will nominate their State ticket. There is every indication that the convention will be harmonious, though there will probably be a warm fight over the chairmanship. General Gregg, of Berks, and Giles D. Price, of Erie, will almost certainly be the nominees for Auditor-General and State Treasurer respectively.

The New York World's suggestion of Mr. Cleveland for Governor of the Empire State has not been received with the wild enthusiasm expected. The source of the proposition is suspicious and New York Democrats are considering the matter well before jumping at the bait.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND's silver views, it is said, prevented him from going to Ohio to help Campbell. Cleveland is not in line with his party on this question. With the Ohio Democrat even the ex-President's free trade propensities do not atone for his "weakness" for honest money.

JAY GOULD insists that he is in excellent health; notwithstanding the newspaper reports. Mr. Blaine can sympathize with Mr. Gould in his effort to live despite the attempts of the correspondents to induce him to believe that his days are numbered.

FIFTEEN years ago Jim Keene dropped ten million dollars on the Chicago wheat exchange. Now he is accredited with having a hand in the bull movement there. Keene has been waiting all this time to get even, and he has apparently succeeded.

ANOTHER of the Philadelphia bank wreckers has been given time in which, in the loneliness of a prison cell, he may reflect upon the hardness of the fate that awaits the transgressor.

PERSONAL POINTS

Jesse D. Grant, the youngest son of General Grant, who has recently been living quietly in California on a large fruit ranch and farm, has been given control, with a large contingent interest in a group of silver mines in Mexico from which over $1,000,000 have been taken in five years. Young Grant's withdrawal from mining and other speculations convinced some of his friends that there was good business timber in his composition, and they offered him this opportunity to re-enter the business world on a solid basis.

"Father Fidelis," son of the Episcopal clergyman, Dr. John Seely Stone, and a grandson of Chancellor Kent, is now visiting Bishop Chatard in Indianapolis. Father Fidelis, who was formerly known as James Kent Stone, is now at the head of the Passionist order in Buenos Ayres, having been engaged in missionary work in South America for ten years.

James Russell Lowell was one of the first men, if not the very first, to make the true estimate of Lincoln. This is a noteworthy thing. Keen and accurate judgment of a contemporary requires knowledge not only of human nature and character, but the prophetic vision of the future development of sentiment and race-history.

Considerable gossip has been caused in the society of St. Petersburg by the suicide of Baron von der Osten-Sacken, a millionaire and a grandson of the Russian Field Marshal, Prince von der Osten-Sacken. The Baron, urged by ennui or dementia, sent a bullet through his brain, in Palmazur, Livonia.

Moritz Moskowski has finished a new opera, entitled "Bohndil," which will be produced next fall in Berlin. Karl Wiskowski has written the libretto for the work, the scene of which is laid in Spain.

Chief Justice Field, of Massachusetts, who has been suffering of late from overwork, has now gained in health sufficiently to count upon resuming his seat on the bench next month.

Franz von Suppe celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his marriage on July 18. He was the object of a great ovation in Gars, where the ceremony took place.

Mrs. Lavinia Fillmore, one of the late President Fillmore's relatives, celebrated her 104th birthday a few days ago. She resides at Clarence, near Buffalo, N. Y.

King George of Greece devotes himself to acoustic experiments with bells and glasses, from which he obtains extraordinary results.

Sir William Gordon-Cumming's relatives and friends are being socially ostracized for their loyalty to him.

Henry Waterson has received the degree of Doctor of Laws from the University of the South.

Governor Hill will attend Labor Day celebration in Buffalo this year.

ELKINS TALKS ABOUT PATTISON.

The well-known Republican on the Governor's Presidential Chances.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 18.—In the opinion of Stephen B. Elkins, Governor Pattison is a most formidable rival to both Cleveland and Hill for the next Democratic nomination for the Presidency. Mr. Elkins talked with much animation on this subject with a correspondent of the Press at Bedford Springs the other day. Among other things he said:

"I have heard no man more mentioned by prominent Democrats recently in connection with the nomination for the presidency in 1892 than the handsome young governor of Pennsylvania. If I were a Democrat I would rather have Governor Pattison's chances for the nominating than those of any other man in the United States. I like to talk politics and to watch the drift of sentiment in both parties. Most of the men I have talked with were from the West. Almost every one of them spoke with the greatest enthusiasm of Pattison. They argued that, since he has twice carried the greatest Republican city in the United States, and twice carried the greatest Republican State, he would be sure to carry Pennsylvania again, this time for a presidential ticket, of which he should be the head."

"Now I, of course, do not believe he can do it, and I told those men so. When national issues are at stake Pennsylvania cannot be carried by the Democratic ticket. They urged that neither Hill nor Cleveland ought to be nominated. They fear that if the one gets the nomination the friends of the other in New York will surely stab him in the back and lose the State. I agreed with them on this point, and I do not believe either Hill or Cleveland will be the candidate. The nomination will go to some man outside of New York. Pattison has more friends in the West than any other Democrat prominently mentioned."

FINED FOR SAVING LIFE.

The Next Time He Will Probably be Killed.

VANCEBURG, Ky., Aug. 18.—Engineer Hughes, of the Kanawha & Frankfort railroad, has just paid $9.01 costs and fine on a warrant sworn out by Will Stevenson. Hughes saw Stephenson lying across the track ahead of his train. With an effort the engine was stopped within a few feet of Stephenson. He appeared to be drunk. Hughes pulled him off and kicked him two or three times. Stephenson was in a fit, and he had Hughes arrested and fined, though he saved his life.

Eruption From Natural Gas.

COLUMBUS, Ind., Aug. 18.—About a year ago a great eruption took place in Shelby county, near the Bartholomew county line, at the headwaters of Flat Rock river. The earth cracked open all over a four-acre tract. Some fishermen had left a fire burning, and natural gas escaping was set on fire, burning for several days. At that time the water from the river shut off the flow of gas and the fire went out. Since that time and until Friday night there has been no disturbance, but last night the near residents were aroused by a low, murmuring noise in that direction. During all yesterday and to-day there has been thrown high in the air from the fissure water from the river and stones. It is not known how wide the fissure is, as it is at the bottom of the river. So far the escaping gas has been prevented from being ignited. The inhabitants in that part of the State are alarmed.

Contest in Dorchester.

CAMBRIDGE, Md., Aug. 18.—In the Republican primary in Dorchester yesterday the only contest was for State's attorney, and so far as heard from, Philip Goldsborough has a majority, though the friends of James W. Weddell, claim that he will receive the nomination in next Tuesday's convention.

Cut His Wife's Throat.

CAMBRIDGE, Md., Aug. 18.—At Hooper's Island, Dorchester county, last night, William Robinson, colored, cut his wife's throat from ear to ear and escaped. Robinson is rather bright in color, five feet eight inches high, and weighs about 200 pounds.

EIGHT YEARS.

In the Eastern Penitentiary is the Sentence of Charles Lawrence, of the Keystone Bank.—The Kennedys Will be Sentenced September 8.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 18.—Charles Lawrence, ex-assistant cashier of the broken Keystone National Bank, who yesterday pleaded guilty in the United States District Court to two indictments, charging him with making false entries in the bank books and with conspiracy with Gideon W. Marsh, president of the bank, to make false entries, was this morning sentenced by Judge Biddle to eight years imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary at labor, and pay a fine of $100 and costs.

Francis W. Kennedy, president, and Henry H. Kennedy, cashier, of the suspended Spring Garden National Bank, were also brought before Judge Butler this morning. The two Kennedys also pleaded guilty yesterday to making false returns to the comptroller of the currency, misapplying the funds of the bank, and making false entries in the books. After the two men had pleaded guilty, Judge Butler was petitioned by their counsel to suspend sentence to allow them to get their affairs in order, and also on the ground that they could be of great assistance to the receiver of the bank in disentangling its affairs. Judge Butler reserved his decision until to-day. This morning he decided to grant the petition, and postponed sentence until September 8.

Judge Butler subsequently reconsidered Lawrence's sentence and reduced it to seven years' imprisonment.

A PECULIAR CRIME.

After Murdering Another Colored Man a Negro Ends His Life Melodramatically.

PRINCETON, Md., Aug. 18.—A little shanty, near King creek, was the scene yesterday of a peculiar murder and suicide. The occupants were Thos. Wallace and wife, who occupied the lower room, and James Maddox, who lived in that above. The men had always been warm friends. Yesterday afternoon Pete Johnson, a friend, came to have his hair cut. Maddox, who is something of a barber, invited him to a chair and began the operation. Wallace, who was standing near by, remarked that he wanted Maddox to shave him when he got through. "All right," said the barber. "Get your razor." To this Wallace replied that he had been looking for it all day, and that he also missed some books and papers. He wound up by intimating that Maddox knew where they were.

At this Maddox dropped the scissors and walked quietly upstairs and came down with his pistol in his hand. Wallace was then standing in the front door with his face toward Maddox. The latter, on seeing Wallace, put the pistol in his hip pocket, walked to a little closet just across the room and picked up an axe.

Not a word had been said by any of the three men since Wallace had made his last speech.

Maddox walked within two feet of Wallace, who never moved, and raising the axe, brought it down on Wallace's head, the force being so great as to drive the blade up to the handle. As Wallace fell, Maddox, still holding on to the handle of the axe, walked out the door, and leaning the axe against the house, took the pistol from his pocket and said to Johnson, who had not moved from his seat during all this: "Pete, I am going to kill myself. I am never going to have it said that the gallows broke my neck, and I know I will be hung."

Johnson jumped up, grabbed the pistol and told him not to do it. After a tussle Maddox finally got the weapon free and pointing it at Johnson told him to stand back, if he didn't he would shoot him, too. Maddox then walked to the corner of the house, and putting the pistol to his breast, said: "Good bye, Pete, I am gone." He pulled the trigger, and, falling to the ground, died instantly.

THE BUG HUNTERS.

In Session at Washington—What the Vermin Eat in a Year.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The Association of Economic Entomologists held its first meeting yesterday, and was addressed by the president, James Fletcher, entomologist and botanist to the Dominion of Canada.

In referring to the great loss to crops occasioned by the ravages of insects, he said that the value of agricultural products of this country is estimated at about $380,000,000, and of this an average of about ten per cent is lost; in short, $38,000,000 is given up almost without a struggle by the people of the United States.

Held the Wrong Man.

MEMPHIS, TENN., Aug. 18.—Col. Dudley Frazer, who was chloroformed and robbed at the Gayso hotel in this city last Thursday, returned from Montecarlo, Ala., this morning for the express purpose of identifying if possible the prisoner held by the Memphis police as a suspect. Colonel Frazer, after looking at the man, stated positively that he was not the person who perpetrated the outrage, and the prisoner, who is Dr. J. E. Clemens, a reputable young physician of this city was released.

More Chinamen to Black.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 18.—Three more Chinamen were arrested at San Antonio yesterday and forwarded to San Francisco, whence they will be sent back to China. They were trying to make their way into the United States from Mexico. These arrests bring the total up to 15 during the past few months.

Last Excursion to the Seashore via B. & O. Railroad.

The last opportunity of the summer to visit Atlantic City at the extremely low rate offered by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will be on Thursday, August 27th, when the series of successful and popular midsummer excursions will close. This excursion, however, will not be at the end of the gay season at the shore. Just as many attractions will abound then as earlier in the season and there will be just as many visitors to enjoy them. For this, as for all previous excursions, the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will provide the excellent train service with Pullman parlor or sleeping cars attached, which have rendered these midsummer trips so popular. Passengers on day trains can spend the night in Philadelphia and take any train of the Reading route the following day, Friday for the shore. Tickets will be valid for return passage on any regular train until September 5, inclusive, and on return journey will permit holder to stop off at Wheeling.

Trains leave Wheeling at 5:45 a. m. and 6:10 p. m., and for these two trains only will tickets be sold. Pullman parlor cars through to Philadelphia without change on morning train and Pullman sleeping cars on evening train. Round trip rate, $10. Correspondingly low rates from other stations. Day

DROKE HER LEG.

But it was Not a Painful Accident—It was Cork.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—A call for an ambulance at Thirty-second street and First avenue was received at Bellevue Hospital yesterday afternoon. Shortly before 4 p. m. Dr. Sprague, who answered it, found a middle-aged woman, who would weigh 320 pounds lying on the sidewalk surrounded by a commiserating crowd. He hustled his way through the people and asked what was the matter. "My leg's broken, doctor," she replied. "It's an artificial one, but I don't see how I can get away from here."

The woman was Mary Ann O'Melia, a dressmaker of 207 West Eighty-fourth street. Five years ago her left leg was broken and an amputation was performed. The substitute which replaced it did excellent service until yesterday, when it snapped without warning. Several men got the heavy woman into the ambulance and she was taken to the hospital. She says she has no money and does not know how she will get another artificial leg. She preferred to go to the hospital rather than home.

Gordon Favors the Chicago Revision.

MONTICELLO, ILL., Aug. 18.—Gen. John B. Gordon, the Commander-in-Chief of the Confederate camps in the United States, has approved the proposed reunion of the survivors of the northern and southern armies in the following letter to Col. K. T. Lee: "In view of my past efforts to promote every movement intended to bring the sections of our common country together, it is hardly necessary, I trust, for me to say that I am in entire sympathy with the proposed reunion of the northern and southern veterans at the World's Fair to be held in Chicago. I trust that many thousands may meet and greet each other at the proposed gathering, and am sure that good and only good can result from such a communion."

A Hardened Criminal at Eighteen.

ORANGE, Aug. 18.—Arthur Ackerman, aged eighteen, son of John Ackerman, of Cleveland street, has been arrested for trying to buy a $4 box of cigars of Italo Contelli, an Italian fruit dealer, with a $20 Confederate bill. He has denied knowing that the bill was bad. He is well educated.

He has served two terms in the county penitentiary—one for a theft in Montclair and the other for obtaining a bicycle from I. H. Johnson, cycle dealer, on a forged order of his father. He was locked up for examination.

FACE DISFIGURED.

Painful, Disfiguring Skin Disease. Every Known Remedy Fails. Cured in One Month by CUTICURA Remedies.

Some time the last of November I had some skin disease in my face. It grew very fast, and about the last of December it became so painful and was very disfiguring, and I had tried everything that I knew, but it did no effect. My face grew worse instead of better. After trying every known remedy I ordered a box of CUTICURA Remedies from you, and began to use it, and in one month my face was well, and as smooth as ever. I have used it for all skin sores and find it to be good in all cases I have used it, and would not be without it. I do not think the CUTICURA and its remedy is too highly recommended. It can be recommended to every body who uses it. It is good for all it is recommended for. MISS L. AMERSON, Toledo, Ala.

Another Bad Face.

I have used the CUTICURA Remedies with great success for acne. My face was so red and it was very disfiguring, and I had tried everything that I knew, but it did no effect. I tried several doctors, they gave me medicine, it did me no good. As a last resort I tried CUTICURA Remedies with great success. M. CLARK, Piedmont, W. Va.
